Scribeasy: Productivity and Enjoyment Increased

Testing with Sample: 85 children from Years 1, 4, 5 and 6 state school
8% of users (100% were boys) said they don't like to write

TOOLS THAT WORK

Typing with Scribeasy: 90% said enjoyed.
Making a picture: 80% said it helped them build an idea.
90% used the thesaurus and said it encouraged them to use more words.

FROM WORRIED TO PROUD

How engagement increased:
30% of the users were worried about writing a story before the session progressed to feeling 80% happy, and two thirds of the group were 'very proud' with what they wrote that day.

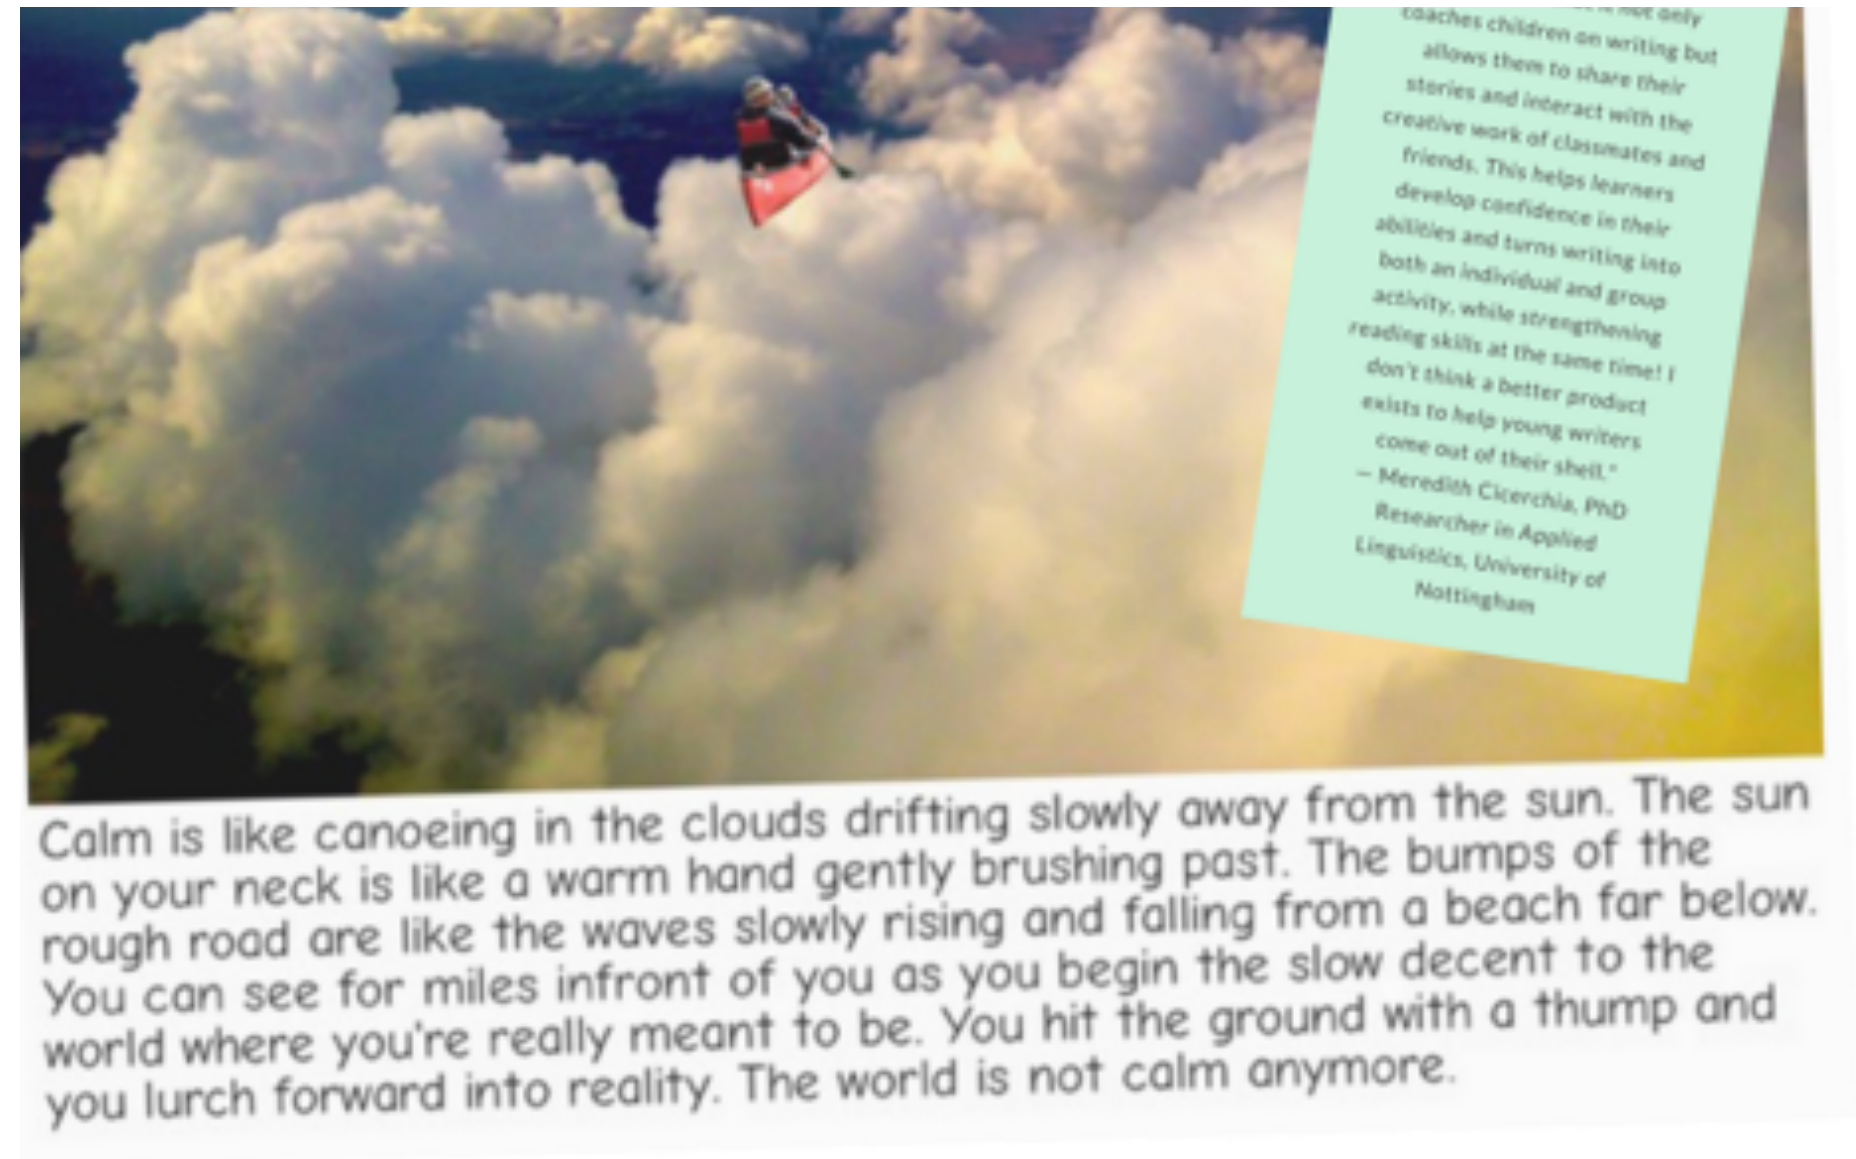

Scribeasy works with older boys

- Those who reported feeling “Worried” when asked to tell a story but went on to be “Proud” reading out their stories were mostly boys (80%) and mostly in Year 6 (93%)
- Year 6 boys explaining why they felt “Worried” when asked to tell a story:
 - “Because I was thinking that mine might not be good”
 - “This is because I panic quickly and forget the story”
 - “Because I don't really like reading”
 - “Because I don't get a lot of ideas”
 - “Because I'm not good at English”
 - “Because I'm not good at stories so I will feel a bit uncomfortable”
 - “Because I don't know what to write”
- When asked whether they like to write, 7 out of 89 children answered “No” - all were boys and there was a very significant overlap with the 9 children who reported not writing at home with parents
- Of those 7 boys who said they didn't like to write, 6 said they had “Enjoyed” typing their Scribeasy story (1 “Not Sure”)

“The quality of writing achieved was exceptional, the children were fully engaged. We saw a terrific range of ideas, exploration and questions about words in the thesaurus, which boosted the range of vocabulary included in the stories. It was lovely to see children who were usually reticent, standing up and sharing their work”.

(Observed a Year 4 group).

Scribeasy takes children from “Worried” to “Proud”

When asked how they (a student) feel when asked to tell a story before the scribeasy session, 70% said “Excited” and 30% said “Worried”
68% of the Scribeasy children were proud to read their story out

Children enjoy using Scribeasy

- Of those who reported feeling “Worried” 78%, agreed that making a picture USING SCRIBEASY gave them more ideas to help write a story more quickly.

What others say...

“What is so impressive about Scribeasy is that it not only coaches children on writing but allows them to share their stories and interact with the creative work of classmates and friends. This helps learners develop confidence in their abilities and turns writing into both an individual and group activity, while strengthening reading skills at the same time! I don't think a better product exists to help young writers come out of their shell.”
